This Sunday's reading – Twenty-fifth Sunday in Ordinary Time Gospel: Matthew 20:1-16

A landowner went out to hire some workers for his vineyard. He took on new workers at the beginning of the day and three more times throughout the day. He promised them all a fair wage.

The workers who arrived first expected to be paid more than the workers who arrived nearer to the end of the day. After all, they are hot and tired and have worked very hard all day, while some of the others have only worked for one hour.

How did the workers who had been hired first feel when they saw that everyone was getting paid the same?

They thought it was unfair. They were angry and complained. Do you agree with them? Why/why not?

The landowner said that he paid the first workers exactly what they agreed was fair at the beginning of the day. He says that they have no reason to be cross that he is generous to the other workers, that he can do what he likes with his own money.

Can you think of a time when you felt you deserved more than you were given? When you felt something was unfair? How did it make you feel?

Who do you think the landowner in the story is supposed to be? What is Jesus trying to tell us?

Jesus is showing us that God's idea of fairness (sometimes we use the word justice), is different to ours. God's fairness is about making sure every single person gets what they need, no matter what their situation.

God gives us all that we need and not just what others think we deserve.

God is generous in giving us what we need – God created a world with enough for absolutely everyone.

But do you think everyone in our world has enough food and water? Why/why not? Do you think this is fair? Do you think this is what God wants?

How can we help make sure that all people get their fair share of the good things that God has given us?

We can try hard not to take more than we need and make sure we don't waste food, water or energy.

We can be generous with what we have, like the landowner in the story, sharing what we have with others.

And we can try to make a change to our world so that it is a fairer place for all people to live.

What will you do this week to try to help make sure that all people around the world get their fair share of the things that God has given for us all?
